APPOINTMENT OF THE SERVICE PROVIDER TO CONDUCT A STUDY TITLED “AN ASSESSMENT OF THE ECONOMIC, SOCIAL AND SECURITY IMPLICATIONS OF ILLEGAL MIGRATION IN THE REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA.” (PERIOD: 8 MONTHS)

- Analyse the impact of illegal migration on: Public trust in government institutions, Perceptions of fairness and rule enforcement.

(d) Develop evidence-based recommendations to inform legislative reform, policy development, and operational interventions aimed at strengthening the management of illegal migration.

2. Background

- The Department has, over the years, undertaken several research initiatives aimed at strengthening the management of international migration and addressing the challenges associated with illegal migration. Previous Departmental work, such as the study on the Impact of Illegal Migration in the Delivery of Social Services (DHA, 2018) highlighted the extent to which undocumented migration affects the provision and accessibility of essential public services, including healthcare, education, and housing.
- These findings demonstrated that illegal migration is not only a migration management issue, but also a cross-cutting governance challenge with implications for service delivery and broader state capacity and aligns with more recent research indicating that illegal migration places pressure on public infrastructure systems and contributes to inefficiencies in service provision. However, there remains a critical gap in understanding the broader economic, social and security impact implications of illegal migration across all sectors of the economy.
- In addition to internal research, the Department has developed and implemented various strategies and interventions aimed at addressing illegal migration, including the adoption of a Risk-Based Approach to migration management, strengthening border controls through the BMA, and enhancing enforcement mechanisms under the Immigration Act 13 of 2002. Despite these efforts, persistent systemic challenges remain, including porous borders, capacity limitations, corruption, and fragmented information systems, continue to facilitate illegal migration flows into the country.
- These challenges undermine the effectiveness of migration control measures and have wider economic, security and social consequences, including lost revenue, increased enforcement costs, and the growth of informal and illicit economic activities, while the difficulty in distinguishing between the costs and contributions of migrants further complicates the relationship between illegal migration and economic performance.

- Given the growing public concern, increased protest action, and ongoing policy debates regarding illegal migration, there is a clear need for a more robust, integrated and evidence-based research framework that extends beyond the social service lens. While previous studies have provided valuable insights, they remain sector-specific and do not adequately quantify the full economic, social, and security implications of illegal migration.
- Despite the prominence of illegal migration in public and policy discourse, South Africa lacks:
 - Reliable estimates of the scale, distribution, and characteristics of illegal migrants
 - Robust evidence on the economic costs and contributions
 - Clear understanding of service delivery pressures at national and municipal levels
 - Empirical analysis of the relationship between illegal migration and security risks
 - Integrated data systems to support coordinated migration governance responses
- There is thus a critical need for a comprehensive, multidisciplinary study that integrates administrative data, field research, and advanced modelling techniques.
